Dr. Martin-Diana is BSc. In Biology and PhD in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology by University Complutense Madrid-UCM (Madrid, Spain). She has an extensive experience (26 years) working in research the field of Pharma, Nutrition and Food Technology Science in the extraction and characterisation of bioactive compounds from food and by-products, characterization and evaluation of health-related properties with special interest on antioxidant, antihypertensive, anti-inflammatory and anti-thrombotic properties through the use of in vitro analysis. Dr. Martin-Diana has participated as Coordinator/IP and Researcher in 42 projects funded with international (European Regional Development Fund, European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development, Interreg VA Spain-Portugal-POCTEP, Irish government competitive funds administered by the Department of Education and Skills, the Higher Education Authority, Science foundation Ireland and others), national (Spanish government- MINECO, MICIN, AEI) and industrial funds through Centro para el Desarrollo Technologic y la Innovación-CDTI, Instituto para la Competitividad Empresarial de Castilla y León or Interprise Ireland). Author of 176 research papers, 127 SCI peer review, with 4198 citations in 3646 documents with impact worldwide (Image 1) and with H index 30 (Scopus) and H index 31 (Researchgate). Five papers have been on the top 25 on Science Direct. Dr. Martin-Diana has worked at national level in Diabetology Department in San Carlos Hospital- UCM, Pharmaceutical Faculty-UCM, Superior Council of Research of Spain-CSIC (Madrid, Spain), University Polytechnic of Valencia (UPV) and Agro Technological Institute-ITACyL. Starting her research in biochemistry and nutrition field (nutraceuticals) investigating the molecular basis to explain the pre-metabolic syndrome (diabetes, obesity and cardiovascular diseases) focused in the insulin, pro-insulin, leptin and CTLA-4 as main markers of the study. And focusing later her research area on the development of functional ingredients and functional foods using by-products as source of valuable raw materials which contribute to reduce the incidence of chronic diseases. The use of novel technological strategies (High hydrostatic pressure, extrusion, germination, ultrafiltration, hydrothermal treatments, atomization, enzymatic hydrolysis among others) and the use of in vitro analysis (antioxidant, antihypertensive, anti-inflammatory and anti-thrombotic properties) have been the main pillar of her research during these years and contribute to the scientific community and industrial and society for the direct application of her projects. She counts with two industrial licences at the moment. In 2002 obtained two postdoctoral grants, one from Spanish government associated to Cambridge University (United Kingdom) and the other grant by Irish government (Arnold Graves a grant for recognised talent attraction researchers). Member of Agencia Española de Seguridad Alimentaria y Nutrición (2014-2019), and member of evaluation scientific committees such as ANEP, DEVA, INIA. Member of Editorial of Journal of Chemistry and Molecules (MDPI). Member of Irish Phyto Network y Nutrisalud (INIA). She has supervised 8 PhD thesis, 8 TFM and 9 TFG. And participate actively in divulgation of science thorough with primary, secondary schools, Minsiterio de Igualdad (Programa ADA). She has management research in Ireland leading two research Units (PTA and FIFU), Deputy Research in ITACyL and actually Head of of Area of Innovation and Process Optimization possitions which are combined with her research activity.
